Export advisory notice 2022/01

Publication of updated list of export advisory notices (EANs)

Species: All

Countries: All

Attention

- All Stakeholders

Purpose

To advise stakeholders that the department has updated the current and expired live animal EAN lists.

Key points

- The department has published a list of EANs current as of December 2021, and a list of expired or information only EANs. See the department's website for further information: <https://www.awe.gov.au/biosecurity-trade/export/controlled-goods/live-animals/advisory-notices>
- We've changed the way we use EANs. They'll be used as a notification tool. Any ongoing requirements will be published on relevant web pages. The EAN will point you to these web pages.
- We are gradually moving current requirements and information from previously issued EANs to our website. The EAN lists will be updated as this work progresses.

Background

This work is part of a broader project underway to review content on the department's live animal export webpages to ensure information is up to date, readily available and easy to find.
