

Export certification for honey and apiculture products changes

Export certificate applications for more countries will move to the new NEXDOC system from 28 July 2022.

Additional countries are being moved onto NEXDOC. A list of countries that will move from July 28, will be updated regularly on our website Transitioning to NEXDOC.

These countries are in addition to Malaysia, which moved to NEXDOC in March.

If you are exporting honey and apiculture products to the countries outlined on the department's website, your export certification is moving onto the NEXDOC system. This will replace your current manual application process for certification.

Benefits of NEXDOC:

- Replaces manual applications and certificates with a faster online system
- Print certificates in your own office
- You can track the status of your application
- QR code security on certificates
- Electronic certificates have lower documentation charges.
