Ultimately, whether a person has a 'reasonable excuse' will depend on the facts and circumstances of the individual case. Accordingly, it will be important for the person to acknowledge they are unable to provide the information required by the Collection Regulations and that they have a reasonable excuse, and to keep records about their reasonable excuse.

For example, a 'reasonable excuse' to not provide the levy payer information may include that a person has put in place effective arrangements to meet legislative requirements for collecting and providing levy payer details – for example, evidenced by updated enterprise systems and/or processes; but is still not able to obtain the relevant information.
